Love It, Chop It

If you're like me, you love patterned paper, or DSP (Designer Series Paper): those beautiful colors, the coordinating stamp sets, the versatile "plain" patterns on the back. The only problem is actually using it, am I right?

In this Splash of Inkspiration class, we'll apply "Love It, Chop It!" principles to the playful Birthday Bonanza Designer Series Paper, as seen on page 32-34 of the Stampin' Up! January-June 2020 Mini Catalog. (Kylie Bertucci, a demonstrator from Australia, popularized the notion of prepping your DSP so that it is ready to use.) The secret is the cutting template* you can use to cut a single sheet of 12" x 12" paper into several panels. You'll be able to make dozens and dozens of cards from a pack of patterned paper! Note that the cutting template for this event is different from the ones used for other Love It, Chop It classes.*

First, I'll cut up each of the six Birthday Bonanza patterns into 6" x 6" pieces—the entire package. Then, using the template, I'll cut half of those squares into smaller pieces (packaged in a labeled plastic case) from which you'll make 12 embellished greeting cards (3 each of 4 designs) with envelopes. Your cards will use the Bonanza Buddies stamp set (photopolymer stamps) and Bonanza dies; both are available to add on to your registration. Some additional products will be used to create cards not quite so kid-oriented!
